Mexican Generals, With Staffs, May Travel Over Border States.

TWO AMERICANS SLAIN

State Department Appeals For Ships to Transport Refugees.

El Paso, Tex., May 3.—This afternoon at 2 p. m. Juarez definitely went over to the revolutionists. Not a shot was fired. Amid wild scenes and cries of "Viva Oregon!" the rebel troops marched into the city and were joined in the streets by the citizenry. Bands began playing and a general fiesta was on.

The murder of two more Americans; a request from the State Department to the Navy Department that destroyers be sent to east coast ports and the granting of permission to two Mexican generals and their staffs to travel through American territory as civilians were the outstanding developments yesterday in the Mexican situation.

Eben Francis Greenlaw, a native of California, and his minor son, were the two Americans murdered. They were killed on May 1 by Mexican bandits near Palazadas, State of Mexico, and only 125 miles from the Mexican capital.

Resided in Mexico for Years. Mr. Greenlaw had been a resident of Mexico for a number of years and was in the employ of a British lumber company. The American Embassy at Mexico City, in reporting the outrage to the State Department said, that representations for the arrest and punishment of the murderers already had been made.

No action had been taken by the Navy Department up to last night on the request from the State Department for the despatch of destroyers to east coast ports. The question was under consideration of Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, and Rear Admiral R. E. Koonitz, chief of operations, and it was understood that the ships would be ordered south by today.

Merely Precautionary Measure. At the State Department it was said that the destroyers had been asked for as a precautionary measure and in order to provide refuge for American citizens in the case of disorders, and that it was not the intention of this government to invest the commanders with any power to send landing parties or interfere in the Mexican uprising.

Permission for Mexican federal troops to cross through the United States was granted by the State Department after the permission of the governors of New Mexico and Arizona for such a movement had been obtained. Gen. Gamboa and Rios, with their staffs, numbering about thirty-five persons, will leave Mexican territory at Nogales and travel to the Texas border, where they will board automobiles for the rest of the trip to Juarez. They will travel as civilians, not in uniform, and unarmed.

The most significant report of disorder received by this government was that rebels had cut the railroad between Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

United States Ambassador John W. Davis and Mrs. Davis, David Blasco and Olga Nether, were a few of the notables present.

A five-minute ovation greeted the American star's appearance on the stage and throughout the performance she was cheered again and again. Ambassador Davis presented Miss Taylor with a magnificent bouquet and personally congratulated her.

PRETTY HAREM GIRL AWAITS CLAIMANT

Immigration Authorities Demand Assurance of Marriage to Rug Dealer.

New York, May 3.—Immigration authorities at Ellis Island today refused to allow a pretty dark-eyed Armenian girl to enter the country until they received assurances from Hampshire Oriental rug dealer, that he would make her his wife.

The girl arrived here today from Naples on the Pierce liner, San Giorgio. Through an interpreter the girl said she had been rescued from the harem of a Turkish Bey and smuggled to Naples.

Harri Yaznojan, a rug dealer of Cambridge, Mass., was in Constantinople to buy rugs. He happened to see two attractive Armenian girls on the street and followed them to the harem of Najib Bey. Yaznojan paid two men to take the girls and one night he had them taken aboard a fishing vessel bound for Naples.

Yaznojan married the younger of the two girls and brought the other to America to become the wife of Terekelyan, his friend in Philadelphia. Authorities said as soon as Terekelyan submitted a bond and declared his intention of marrying the Armenian girl she would be released in his custody.

Drops Dead at Wife's Grave

I struck New York about noon one day and took a walk up Broadway. And I run against Silver himself, all encompassed in a spacious kind of haberdashery, leaning against a hotel and rubbing the half-moons on his nails with a silk handkerchief. "Paretsis or superannuated?" I asks him. "Hello, Billy," says Silver. "I'm glad to see you. Yes, it seemed to me that the West was accumulating a little too much wisecracks. I've been saving New York for desert. I know it's a low-down trick to take things from the people. They only

ABANDON PLAN TO FILIBUSTER AGAINST PEACE

Senate Democrats to Allow Knox Resolution to Be Passed.

BILL WILL BE VETOED

Treaty Will Be Carried Into Coming Campaign as Result.

Democratic plans to filibuster against the Knox peace resolution in the Senate were abandoned last night by Democratic Leader Underwood, and as a result it is expected that there will be no concerted effort to prevent adoption of the measure.

Senator Underwood intimated that the President is entirely willing to face the question of vetoing the Knox resolution. Senate Democrats, in determining on the filibuster, had assumed that the President would be embarrassed by the alternative of again preventing peace or of seeing the Senate victorious by approving the resolution.

Senator Lodge will call up the resolution in the Senate tomorrow.

Will Affect Campaign. The new attitude of the Senate Democrats opens up a number of possibilities, one of which is that of a Presidential campaign with the chief issue being the treaty as against the Knox peace resolution. President Wilson, in line with his previously expressed desire to see the treaty carried into the campaign, has apparently discovered in the Knox resolution just the added touch that will give a clear cut definition to the campaign. He supposedly believes that by adopting the Knox resolution the Republican majority in the Senate will commit the party to straight opposition to the treaty and the league of nations, and thus make the fight a simple question of treaty or no treaty, and league or no league.

Will Aid Knox Boom. Another angle discovered in the new situation is that the now conceded adoption of the Knox resolution will give a tremendous boost to the movement for making Senator Knox the Republican nominee. Penrose, with the resolution Boies Penrose. With the resolution as one of the points at issue in the campaign, political observers see the possibility of Senator Knox as the logical man to conduct the fight.

DRY PROCLAMATION STANDS, SAYS COURT

Chief Justice Smythe of the Court of Appeals yesterday refused to compel Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, to withdraw the proclamation of his predecessor, Robert Lansing, to the effect that the Eighteenth amendment—making the whole United States "dry"—had been ratified by three-fourths of the several States, therefore becoming a part and parcel of the Constitution.

Shortly after Lansing had made this announcement the "wets" sought to compel him to withdraw it on the ground that it was made on inaccurate certifications on the part of certain States. Chief Justice Smythe stated that it was not the duty of the Secretary of State to inquire into the accuracy of these certifications.

POLICE ARREST 3 ON CHARGE OF CRACKING SAFE

Youngest of Trio, 16 Years Old, Is Alleged Ring-leader.

BETRAYED BY TOOL KIT

Detectives Assert Lads' Confession Included Details of "Jobs."

Following the discovery last Friday in a local restaurant of a kit of burglar tools, three Washington boys, the youngest 16 years old, were arrested yesterday by headquarters detectives charged with safe cracking.

Charles T. Cummings, 1528 A street northeast, youngest of the trio, is the ring-leader, according to the police, who say he planned and carried into execution the attempt on the night of February 14 to rob the safe of the Brewood Engraving Company, 519 Thirteenth street northwest. The others are Dennis Leahy Smith, 19, of 1690 East Capitol street, and Arthur Salvatore Bassi, 21, of 535 Seventh street southeast.

Door of Safe Jammed. The attempt to open the safe was frustrated when, after four hours of toll, they were unable to budge from its position a door of the safe which had become jammed by the force of the explosion of dynamite.

The boys told the detectives, they say, how two holes were drilled in each door of the safe, the dynamite wired and placed and set off with a spark from a search-light battery.

Worked for Housing Corporation. Cummings, the police declare, learned how to use dynamite while in the employ of the Housing Corporation. It was while in the employ of the Housing Corporation that he obtained the dynamite and percussion caps used in the attempt.

Arrest of the trio was directly precipitated by finding the tools. Inspector Grant noticed the similarity between some wire found with the tools and the wire which the youngsters used in the attempt to rob the Brewood safe. He assigned Detective Sergts. Scrivener and Kelly to running down the owner of the kit.

Cummings Breaks Down. The kit of tools was found on Friday, and Saturday afternoon the detectives arrested Cummings. The boy was termed by the police as "very hard to break" but after a cross-examination he broke down and told his story. He implicated Smith and Bassi, and their arrest followed. They, too, the police say, confessed to having a part in the robbing of the Brewood safe. They also told of having entered a store

$10,000 BLAZE IN WAREHOUSE

Prompt Action by Firemen Saves Morris & Co. Plant This Morning.

Fire early this morning did damage estimated at about $10,000 to the sales rooms and warehouse of Morris and Company, wholesale meat packers of Chicago, with offices here at 626 Pennsylvania avenue, extending back the entire block to 629 B street northwest, where the warehouses are located.

The cause of the blaze is unknown. Early morning pedestrians saw smoke issuing from the building shortly before 1 o'clock and an alarm was sent in. This was quickly followed by a second alarm. Quick action by the firemen prevented the blaze from spreading. Most of the damage was done by water.

The blaze was first discovered in the cellar where 30,000 pounds of smoked meats are stored. These were mostly ruined by water. Isaac M. Oakley, manager of the local house, stated that no definite estimate of the damage could yet be given.

MARYLAND VOTE CAST FOR WOOD; JOHNSON LOSES

Soldier Carries Baltimore and All but Two Remote Counties—Certain of Solid Delegation to Chicago Convention—Vote Light—G. O. P. Congressmen Renominated Without Opposition.

Latest reports from the Maryland Presidential primary indicate a sweeping victory for Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood over Senator Hiram Johnson. Wood's lead assures his control of the State convention, which will select the State's delegates to the Chicago convention. Wood also has the Maryland Republican popular endorsement for the Presidential nomination.

The primary contest in Indiana came to a close last night, with Wood and Johnson supporters claiming victory. Lowden and Harding ended their campaign Saturday.

California today will vote whether Johnson or Herbert Hoover shall go to the Chicago convention with that State's backing.

Wood and Johnson Predicting Victory In Indiana Primary

Indianapolis, Ind., May 3.—The spectacular primary campaign in Indiana ended tonight with Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, and Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood driving home their final arguments to voters who will express their Presidential preference at the polls tomorrow. The other two contestants, Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, and Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, completed their respective campaigns Saturday.

It is evident that no candidate will receive a majority of the votes cast, which, under the Indiana law, is required before this State's thirty delegates are sent to the national convention under an ironclad instruction to vote for the primary winner as long as his name is before the convention.

If no candidate receives more than a plurality at the primary tomorrow the State convention will have the option of either sending delegates uninstructed or instructed to vote for the aspirant who received the most votes.

Wood Forces Confident. Johnson has insisted that if he does not win a plurality at the primary tomorrow he will not ask for a single vote from this State, and has taken the position that the entire delegation should support the candidate who receives the heaviest popular vote. Harding and Lowden backers have been insisting that the letter of the law be lived up to. They favor an uninstructed delegation should no majority vote be cast.

Managers of Wood were confident tonight that a drift of Lowden and Harding support had come their way during the last thirty-six hours. They declared that the real fight at the polls tomorrow rests between Wood and Johnson, and that many of the Lowden-Harding supporters, seeing a Johnson menace, had decided to assist Wood.

Light Vote Expected. A light vote was cast all over the State, particularly in Baltimore, where less than one-fifth of the registered vote was cast.

Wood's majority in Baltimore runs far over 2,000. In the counties his lead will run close to 6,000, making his majority in the entire State at least 9,000.

As result of the vote today, all of Maryland's sixteen delegates to the Chicago convention will be instructed for Wood. The date of the State convention for which delegates were chosen today has not as yet been set. At the convention the national delegates will be selected and instructed.

Vote in Baltimore. Some idea of how Wood ran in Baltimore can be gained from the following vote in wards scattered about the city.

In the First ward Wood secured 283 votes and Johnson 129; Second, Wood 153, Johnson 54; Fourth, Wood 291, Johnson 135; Fifth, Wood 263, Johnson 50; Sixth, Wood 234, Johnson 217; Tenth, Wood 172, Johnson 46; Sixteenth, Wood 254, Johnson 200; Seventeenth, Wood 469, Johnson 152; Nineteenth, Wood 227, Johnson 219; Twenty-sixth, Wood 135, Johnson 305.

The Twenty-sixth ward is in the Bethlehem Steel and Shipbuilding zone, and the vote mostly represents that of the steel workers and shipbuilders.

Senator Johnson, it was thought, had stirred the Republicans to some extent, but he seems to have created only a ripple on the political waters. One explanation of this was the publicity given his stand in favor of prohibition. The vote regarded as naturally his, is, as a rule, "wet," and when it learned that he had not stood for the "wets," they were disposed to slight him in the voting.

Nominees for Congress. The following are nominees for United States Senate and Congress in Maryland as a result of the primaries:

United States Senate—O. E. Weller, Republican; John Walter Smith, Democrat.

Congress, First district—William A. Andrews, Republican; T. Allan Goldsborough, Democrat.

Second district—A. A. Blakeney, Republican.

BABES IN THE JUNGLE

MONTAGUE SILVER, the finest street man and art grafter in the West, says to me once in Little Rock: "If you ever lose your mind, Billy, and get too old, to do honest swindling among grown men, go to New York. In the West a sucker is born every minute; but in New York they appear in chunks of roe—you can't count 'em!"

Two years afterward I found that I couldn't remember the names of the Russian admirals, and I noticed some gray hairs over my left ear; so I knew the time had arrived for me to take Silver's advice.

By O. HENRY

I struck New York about noon one day and took a walk up Broadway. And I run against Silver himself, all encompassed in a spacious kind of haberdashery, leaning against a hotel and rubbing the half-moons on his nails with a silk handkerchief. "Paretsis or superannuated?" I asks him. "Hello, Billy," says Silver. "I'm glad to see you. Yes, it seemed to me that the West was accumulating a little too much wisecracks. I've been saving New York for desert. I know it's a low-down trick to take things from the people. They only as well send their photos to the Evening Daily. "I've been studying the town," says Silver, "and reading the papers every day, and I know it as well as the cat in the City Hall knows an O'Sullivan. People here lie down on the floor and scream and kick when you are the least bit slow about taking money from them. Come up in my room and I'll tell you. We'll work the town together, Billy, for the sake of old times."

Silver takes me up in a hotel. He has a quantity of irrelevant objects lying about.

"There's more ways of getting money from these metropolitan hayseeds," says Silver, "than there is of cooking rice in Charleston, S. C. They'll bite at anything. The brains of most of 'em commute. The wiser they are in intelligence the less perception of conscience they have. Why, didn't a man the other day sell J. P. Morgan an oil portrait of Rockefeller, Jr., for Andrea del Sarto's celebrated painting of the young Saint John?"

"Hyperbole aside," says I, "do you know of any immediate system of buncoing the community out of a dollar or two except by analysis to the Salvation Army or having a fit on Miss Helen Gould's doorsteps?" "Dozens of 'em," says Silver. "How much capital have you got, Billy?" "A thousand," I told him. "I've got $1,200," says he. "We'll pool and do a big piece of business. There's so many ways we can make a million that I don't know how to begin."

The next morning Silver meets me at the hotel and he is all sonorous and stirred with a kind of silent joy.

"We're to meet J. P. Morgan this afternoon," says he. "A man I know in the hotel wants to introduce us. He's a friend of his. He says he likes to meet people from the West."

"That sounds nice and plausible," says I. "I'd like to know Mr. Morgan."

"It won't hurt us a bit," says Silver, "to get acquainted with a few finance kings. I kind of like the social ways New York has with strangers."

The man Silver knew was named Klein. At three o'clock Klein brought his Wall Street friend to see us in Silver's room.

"Mr. Morgan" looked some like his picture, and he had a Turkish towel wrapped around his left foot, and he walked with a cane. "Mr. Silver and Mr. Peacock," says Klein. "It sounds superfluous," says he, "to mention the name of the greatest financial."

"Cut it out, Klein," says Mr. Morgan. "I'm glad to know you, gentlemen. I take great interest in the West. Klein tells me you're from Little Rock. I think I've a railroad or two out there somewhere. If either of you guys would like to deal a hand or two of stud poker I—"

"Now, Pierpont," cuts in Klein, "you forget!"

"Excuse me, gentlemen," says Morgan, "I've got to go."
